Canadian Network for the Governance of Ethical Health Research Involving Humans: Evidence, Accountability and Practice

Michael McDonald, Guest Editor

This special issue of the Health Law Review is a product of the Canadian Network for the Governance of Ethical Health Research Involving Humans. The Network held a four-day retreat in July 2008 at the University of Victoria's Dunsmuir Lodge Conference Centre. Twenty-two participants met in plenary sessions to identify major issues and develop themes for network discussion, investigation and action. As the meeting progressed, writing groups coalesced around important topics. Many of the resulting papers appear in this issue.
